Hello, health innovation players.

Considering your next move?
In Aarhus, Denmark – you will be in the middle of the action!

Health Innovation Aarhus is a ecosystem in the Aarhus area in Denmark. We are a visionary community of national and international healthcare partners – and a Danish epicentre for innovation, research knowledge, investments, business development and commercialisation.

We have been able to attract a significant amount of talent here in the Aarhus area. In fact, it has been easier for us to attract talented staff in Aarhus than to our office in Copenhagen.

Have a seat ... right in the middle of the action

Whether you are an investor, start-up, established business, researcher, student, software developer or any other type of healthcare innovation specialist, the Aarhus area is your perfect innovation playground.

Within a relatively small geographical area you will have access to:

- A development and sustainability-oriented healthcare system comprising i.a. the world-ranked Aarhus University Hospital (10,000+ employees), Aarhus University (38,000 students) 300+ established life science companies and a thriving incubator environment.
- A knowledge-sharing community of health innovation stakeholders that inspire and help develop you and your business.
- A unique Danish and very open minded way of working and innovating in close collaboration with scientists, healthcare professionals, private companies and other actors, including patients, investors and citizens.
- A solid culture of public-private partnership that improves the innovation potential.
